Kraft buys Cadbury

After a 5 month bidding battle, US food company Kraft has purchased UK company Cadbury, making them the World's largest confectionary company. Cadbury is most recognized for its chocolate treats including Dairy Milk Bars and Flake. Kraft says they want to build a global confectionery leader. The bid provided 840 pence per share of Cadbury totalling £11.7

billion (approximately $19.5 billion). In order to finance the bid, Kraft sold off it's frozen pizza line, including Delissio Pizza.

There are concerns that this take over could result in several job cuts and possibly eventual closure of UK production. Cadbury will no longer be a United Kingdom Company. There is also a concern that Kraft may not honour Cadbury's current commitment to the use of Fairtrade cocoa beans for its Dairy Milk brand.

Initially, Hershey was also considering bidding on the company, but backed down. Kraft's previous bids were shot down by Cadbury. The bidding generated political and public interest in the UK and abroad. The final decision to accept Kraft's offer was made by Cadbury shareholder vote on Feb. 2.

We currently carry several Cadbury favourites. Buttons, Timeouts, Dairy Milk, Double Decker, Curly Wurly and Flake are all made by Cadbury!
